

MOVE EAT TREAT

To David Cameron, Members of Parliament, Presidents of the Royal Colleges and to all Hospital and University Deans.

I understand the challenges the healthcare system faces. Yet the education healthcare professionals receive does not address the main problem we face today as a society.

Britain is facing a crisis. Record rates of obesity and chronic disease are gripping the nation. This has led to a reduced quality of life for many patients and paints a bleak picture for the future.

I want this to change. I want you to use your influence to support a move from a reactive to a proactive healthcare system, with all healthcare professionals receiving considerable education on lifestyle advice throughout their careers. This will allow healthcare professionals to empower patients to lead healthier, happier lives and create a true health service.

I am supporting the Move. Eat. Treat. campaign to help bring about this vital change in our education and healthcare system.
